Kids used to sing is a denunciation of the mutilation music and other art activities are suffering nowadays. At the same time, it is a call to hope and fight to ensure that nobody can take what is ours. People from both sides of the Atlantic who make a living from music show us, through true and committed opinions, their vision of the music scene in their corresponding communities. Respect for musicians, inadequate education, lack of opportunities and persecution of freedom are just some of the aspects that frequently appear as a part of the problem.
