Fernando Gallego is a DJ, but not just anybody: Nando Dixkontrol. For many he is an anonymous character, completely unknown, but there was a time when he was the epicentre of a sound earthquake and amassed fortunes. The party spread wherever he was. He was the party. His figure concentrated the essence of a generation of young people who claimed the weekend as a playful space, as a place to express themselves away from the facade of daily life. How? Dancing. Non-stop. Today, 30 years after the sublimation of the DJ as supreme medium, the equation remains in force, but Nando Dixkontrol is no longer a claim and Fernando Gallego refuses to die. From the honey of success, to the abyss of oblivion; to dance or to die, there is no other way.
