Amadeo is a good person. He lives in a small village in Valencia, and since his wife died, he devotes himself to taking care of his father-in-law, Agustin, who is disabled. As a result, he doesn't participate much in social life in the village. One day Lolín, the fishmonger's daughter, has a premonition while decapitating an eel: Amadeo has only seven days to live. This fact will set in motion a series of events that will change his life completely.

Every episode lasts five minutes, is self-conclusive and it has one or two main characters. There's a clear intent to make the audience conscious of the organic time; silences have a lot of presence and dialogues are minimal. Time markers are also crucial throughout the series and often appear represented by a clock or a mobile phone.

In an abandoned industrial warehouse only one presence remains alive: a security guard who observes reality from a solitude and intimacy at the edge of the human. There has also appeared a framing, a camera, the viewer's gaze. When they found each other, the security guard with the possibility of making art, myth of his life, and the camera with a protagonist, something to film, begins a symbiotic relationship in which one discovers the possibilities of the other. Inevitably, this situation tends to become a movie, a fiction if you will, where the security guard, absolute protagonist, will be suffocated by his own story.

After the Fire is a searing, socio-political drama set in a contemporary London reeling from the aftermath of an avoidable tragedy. Miles has lost everything in the fire, including his beloved daughter. As a taxi driver on a zero-hours contract, he is at the mercy of a system rife with class division, in a community assailed by indignities. The film traces his journey as he tries to find his way back to a life which has meaning. He is a man on the edge and it is only a matter of time before he will break. Finally, he will find himself on trial, which will bring societal inequity into sharp focus, reminding us of the glaring, ironic contradictions of Britain.

Albert, a young man aged 21, is diagnosed with his third cancer and this time he is determined to battle it again, but in his own way.

With nothing but a camera, he starts recording his own experiences and explaining what he is going through, and so "Vivir a Contracorriente" is born.

"Vivir a Contracorriente" ("Living against the tide") promptly becomes a social movement that breaks with the existing taboos around cancer and shares a new perspective of the disease with the world, a new way of facing cancer based on communication, a healthy lifestyle and, especially, an insatiable will to live, instead of fighting to survive on a bed.

This Internet-spread social phenomenon will bring Albert's fight to the hearts of thousands of people worldwide.

In a small village in the Pyrenees, on an undetermined date around the 10th century, Narbona is a girl who is affected by a disease that the new medical classes find incurable.

Caterina, her mother, calls for the help of a witch named La Vigatana, as had been done for centuries in the pagan and pre-Christian tradition that dominated the harmonious and communal life of the valley.

By means of ancestral knowledge and natural remedies, La Vigatana manages to cure the girl, but the intrusion of the representatives of the new official powers (the feudal lord, the priest and the knights) execute the healer on the pretext that she is a danger to be eradicated.

Barcelon, summer of 1992. These are glorious times for everybody.. For everybody except Carlos, the owner of the last beach bar in Barceloneta. Indebted, without clientele, just divorced and about to lose the family business and the love of his teenage daughter, bad luck does not stop hitting him.

In a desperate attempt to straighten out his situation, Carlos improvises a great lie that will soon become his worst nightmare. He invents, neither more nor less, that Michael Jordan, the idol of his daughter, will go to eat at the beach bar right after the closing of the Olympics.

Immediately, Mariluz, a former delinquent reformed and turned into a beach bar cook, spreads the news throughout the neighborhood. Cornered by his own lie, Carlos will try to make his daughter's dream come true and will do everything possible to contact Air Jordan and get the basketball star to go to the restaurant. On this depends his relationship with Sara and he and Mariluz will invent the most hilarious and bizarre plans that can be imagined to achieve it. An extraordinary adventure with the Olympics as the background.

Hugo is a boy who lives anchored in the routine, focused on his tasks and responsibilities. Unable to look forward, he lets opportunities pass, stalling in the past. On the contrary, Cosmo is a free soul that lives without looking back, always going from one place to another no matter where. One summer afternoon their gazes cross by chance. It is only an instant, but it will be the birth of a relationship that will make them stop for the first time to live the present.
An instant is a story about friendship, love and the importance of the small moments that endow our lives with meaning.

What would you do if one day you realise that a double, a doppelganger similar to you, has taken your place in life and nobody even suspects that she is not you? If all your obligations, all your duties, were being performed by that 'other you', would you fight to recover your lost identity? Or, on the contrary, would you try to find your own being far from everything that was supposed to be your 'normal' life? And, in that case, would this option help you find true happiness?

Darling and whore is a comedy that narrates the constant ruptures and reconciliations of Marcos, a film director who is going through a creative crisis, and Adrián, a pop music composer.

Both Marcos and his two friends, Zaida and Julia, embark on a series of superficial relationships, which will make them move from simple selfishness to the revelation and awareness of the loved one. Nausicaa Bonnin participates in the film, interpreting herself, and also the singer Yurena, who is immersed in Barcelona to star in the remake of "Viaggio in Italia", in this moral tale about the passage of time and desidealization.

And it's his daughter Lola (Claudia Placer), a bright and curious 10-year old, who bears the brunt of his sentimental indifference as she has no other adult to turn to.

What was once a cause for social awkwardness soon leads to on-the-job negligence when Marcos's inability to recognize emotions puts a person's life in danger. If he is to avoid jail time, Marcos must enter a psychiatric facility. There, his unique disorder will place two doctors with diametrically imposed methodologies at odds: the young psychologist Luna (Manuela Vallés) and the renowned Dr. Durán (Pedro Casablanc). Their head-to-head will lead to drastic changes for all, as it helps Marcos to connect with his past, recover his emotions and offer him the opportunity to live again.

A man, around 55 years of age, appears walking down a desolate highway.

From his ripped clothes and injured face it seems he has had an accident, but he can't remember who he is or how he got there. He has no ID on him, no cell phone or anything that can identify him. He has total amnesia.

His name is Juan Elias, a successful criminal lawyer with aspirations of becoming dean of the university and teacher of the most sought after ethics Masters Course in the country. He has a 19 year old son who admires him and a rebellious 11 year old daughter, both from his marriage to judge Alicia Castro. Theirs is a relationship founded on more than just love; it is based on sincerity and complete complicity.

Now, the doctors have recommended that Elias go home and hope that being back in familiar surroundings will help jog his memory. He returns home to discover what type of husband and father he used to be and to rebuild the emotional ties that he once had. This won't be an easy task for Juan Elias. Neither will it be the only challenge he has to face.

When the police find the wreck of Elias' car, they also find the cell phone of his 23 year old niece, Anna Saura. She was a student of his and disappeared the same night as the accident. All the evidence points to the fact that Elias killed her. Now he will have to find a way to prove his innocence, even though he himself is unsure of whether or not he's guilty.

After a swimming accident that leaves her seriously injured, Marta Strinati, an Olympic diver, finds herself disoriented and alone. So, she leaves the city of Barcelona and moves to a medieval Italian hilltop town surrounded by the most incredible and unspoiled countryside. Marta reopens the studio-cum-home of her father, a painter who died recently, and meets Sebastian, one of the many artists living in the village, a man of unquestionable charisma, who is magnetic, touchy. At his exhibition, she discovers his paintings, all of the same muse, a Japanese girl, both disturbing and reassuring, and feels a strong sense of déjà vu. Suddenly, the model of the paintings, is there beside her, and it is immediately apparent that the mysterious oriental girl will have a huge effect on her life... Marta's encounter with Haru, the model of all the hyper-realistic paintings on show at the exhibition, soon develops into an affair that Marta realizes she can't live without, a sort of blighting physical and mental obsession. An extreme Stendhal syndrome, or just a love as strong as death?

Extremadura, 19th century Spain. Tin and his friends are a group of four shepherd children who like to play cards under the shade of a fig tree, but the arrival of a new Señorito (a landowner, typical of these parts of Spain at the time) will change their lives forever. He won't allow them to roam freely over the plains and hills anymore. As children, he'd throw rocks at them whenever he saw them, but now that they're adults, he uses guns.

So far, his only victim is one of the sheep in their flock, but who knows if, in the future, one of them will be next. The time has come to face him and finally do something about it: so the four friends decide to pick, through a game of cards, which of them will be the one to kill their oppressor.

Set in Barcelona, this web series is a mockumentary that tells the stories of people of different nationalities, disease carriers, living in Barcelona. The objective of the project is to investigate the topics existing around the female (and male) figure in experiential contexts, which are common though rarely treated by fiction, as well as topics that remain taboo in contemporary society. The adventures of the protagonists – with their experiences and reflections – that tell of a 'meeting' that never happens, give us a clear vision of their desires and actual daily struggles, showing how you can live in a harmonious way and provoking deep reflection on today's feminine condition.

Love is forever (VI) takes us to September 1969. A lot has happened in the world and in the microcosm of the Plaza de los Frutos since Ginés was arrested a year back for the murder of Alonso Núñez de Losada.

In 1969 it is a Spain eagerly awaiting the decision of Franco, who will appoint Prince Juan Carlos de Borbón as the legitimate successor of the monarchy. A Spain in which student riots continue to be a headache for the Regime; a Spain trying hard to appear open and modern yet still firmly anchored to traditionalisms.

And it is in this milieu that the lives and plots of our characters will unfold, full of love, ambition, culture, passion, rivalry, jealousy and humour.

In the midst of Castile's endless fields of grain swaying in the wind, in a place further than the eye can see, is a sleepy town where Francisco, an entrepreneur in the meat processing business, has set up his slaughterhouse. He imports cheap, low-grade pigs from Portugal and then sells them off. His brother-in-law, Alfonso, works in the slaughterhouse. A veterinarian by profession, Alfonso is a weak and cowardly man who deep down is tired of looking the other way, certifying animals of dubious quality. What Alfonso doesn't know is that a number of these animals are carriers for drugs. An unexpected situation will upend his anodyne life.

Anna Maria Dalí is four years younger than her brother Salvador and they adore each other. They will soon enjoy the great progressive atmosphere of Republican Spain, fraternizing with great creators such as García Lorca, Buñuel... A happy paradise which is shattered by the outbreak of European Wars, the arrival of the always mysterious Gala and the astonishing worldwide success of Salvador, one of the greatest painters of the 20th Century.

The fascinating beauty of Cadaqués, one of the most beautiful villages in the Mediterranean gives this contemporary tragedy a unique edge. Two genuine personalities, who despite the love they profess for each other throughout their entire lives, stop talking to each other for forty years. The Dalís are marked, like a Greek tragedy, by their character, their loves, their free spirits, their betrayals, for being products of their own family and for having lived intensely the most tormented and passionate years of a century full of war, dictatorships, and of cultural, social, political and artistic change.

An almost unreal story of love but also of resentment, small-mindedness, ambition and power which would in the end splinter the nature of sibling relationships, explained by an exceptional testimony, that of the long-suffering Anna Maria, Miss Dalí.

Set in a future society where humans are subjected to therapies with the goal of suppressing all their emotions for greater productivity. Ivan, actor Carlos Noriega, is a psychiatrist for the company NovaTerra whose purpose is to integrate all those people who decide to enter the company despite not knowing the sacrifice they're making. However, one of his patients, Eva, actress Núria Codina, will rebel against the system and will awaken feelings in Ivan for the first time, making him question the corporation and society itself. Ivan will enter a dangerous game in which he must decide whether to continue under government orders or be carried away by his emotions.

Paula is a fourteen-year-old girl who has difficulty relating to her environment. When summer comes, she travels alone to Ojos Negros, the village where her mother grew up and where her family still lives. The distant character of her aunt and the illness of her grandmother create a suffocating climate in the house. It is then that she meets Alicia, who is outgoing and spontaneous. The end of this first friendship and the witnessing of her grandmother's death will make her see what growing up really means.

Joana and Nina are two 13-year-old friends in the midst of puberty. The first one, bubbly and brazen, has vital questions about female gender. She's gender-nonconforming and she shows it in her illustrations. She's very popular at school, and very successful on social networks. The second one, the daughter of Guinean migrants, is a calm and reflective young woman who suffers from anorexia. Both are women of their time and condition: social networks, immediacy and excesses. Today, Joana has decided to put an end to her existential anxiety. At that moment a macabre game devised by Joana begins. That decisive moment of puberty will cause something in each of them to change forever.

Once upon a time, in a little place in the mountains, there was an old dressmaker who would weave and unweave the clothes of an entire village.

Nobody has been waiting longer than her.

One day, Ramon returns to that very same place, his birthplace, to reunite with his people after decades of absence. But no one recognizes him when he returns. Not even her. He has become a stranger.

Through a revisitation of the Odyssey's myth, Penélope taps into the universal meaning of the act of waiting. Penelope is the mother, the earth, the starting point. Through her, possibly the last Penelope in our times, we will remember who we were to understand better who we are.

In an ambiance loaded with tension, intellectual doubts and creative frustration, Rainer Werner Fassbinder writes and teaches the staging of a theater piece about the 18th century Libertiage at a great theater in Berlin.

The personal ambitions, the inner demons and a latent desire of psychological revenge, poison the relations between Fassbinder and the actors. Specially with Günther Kaufmann, whom was in other times the lover of the director and nowadays is a married man with two children. The collision of values and character in between these two characters is inevitable, even though both need each other for different reasons.

Petra is a young rebel artist who, despite her mother's advice, is trying to meet her father, whose identity has always been hidden from her. Jaume is a famous plastic artist who mistreats everybody around him. Lucas is a humanist photographer who tries to escape his father's long shadow.

The story of these three characters becomes a spiral of evil, family secrets, death and violence. Despite Petra and Lucas' attempts to contain Jaume's anger, resentment and hatred, fate imposes its cruel logic. Only at the end, an unexpected revelation allows Lucas and Petra to find a path to redemption.

A woman and two men undertake an absurd escape to a remote island, towards utopia: Rarotonga be its name. The promise of a better life.

Rarotonga is the third short film in the Trilogy of Mistake. A project that started with Rumbo a peor (Worstward Ho), continued with Rifirrafe (Scuffle) and was interrupted due to a series of fatalities, basically the incomprehensible death of the actor Alfonso Bayard. The idea of a society that expels sensitive people, of certain nearly invisible axes that oppress those who don't want to submit to the rules, is what lies behind this story, as baffling as it is uncomplete in its narrative form. It is with humour and tenderness that we have tried to relate this little odyssey.

An immaterial being talks us through the streets of a coastal town. Moving between people's feelings, dreams, and mindscapes, the spirit relentlessly looks for his double among the city's inhabitants.

Tau is a docu-fiction portrait of a city, Tarragona, during the year 2003, as seen through the 'eyes' of a daemon that dwells in a parallel, yet close reality to our own. The story takes place somewhere between the contemporary world and the ancient times of myths, spirits and daemons. The film also explores traditional culture and its archetypes showing the eternal conflict between centralized and decentralized structures, between pyramids and networks.

Joel Joan is a recognized actor in real life, who plays himself in this series. He is incongruous, inconsistent, intransigent, indecent, impossible, and insatiable.

In the first season of the series he has already burned a lot of bridges and nobody wants to work with him. Nonetheless, he decides to do whatever is necessary to land an important role in a big upcoming film project, stirring up outrageous and off-the-wall, yet entertaining, situations.

In the second season, Joel is offered the possibility of playing a stage role, which is hard to refuse, but he still faces challenges ahead. On stage he finds himself competing with another highly-respected actor, but this time one from the theater world.

Three young girls have been murdered. Within a few days, the first corpse appears and the main suspect of the murder is imprisoned. Years later, the other two bodies are found and the case is reopened. Then, the old boyfriend of one of them begins a dangerous investigation that takes a totally new course. With a dark setting and a well-worked intrigue, we start from a crude reality that impacts on the peaceful life of an island community. It questions the true motivations that move the human soul by entering into a dark and unknown world that raises the question of how each of us dreams about life and understands their own professional ambition.

Lili has been in a stable relationship for about two years. Though everything seems to be working between her partner and her, there is an underlying unhappiness in her everyday life that keeps her from being happy. Outwardly, she has no excuse to justify this inability to move forward and be happy with David.

This feeling is not new. So, she decides that before throwing-it all away again, she will get to the bottom of things and find out what has led to this cyclic state. Lili seeks the help of the four men who have been important in her life, by interviewing them and asking the initial question: What have we done wrong?

Vicenç, a man in his forties, is about to become a father for the first time. When he's invited to dinner at Pere and Isabel's house, (his sister and brother-in-law), he also finds a good friend from his childhood there, Claudi. While waiting for Anna, Vicenç's partner, who is late as usual, they ask him a lot of questions about his upcoming paternity and what it means for him, without never losing their sense of humour... But when suddenly asked if they have already chosen a name for the child, Vicenç's response leaves everyone speechless.

Five teenagers become friends at an international school in Barcelona, housed in a building designed by Antoni Gaudí. The discovery of a dragon animated by a mysterious force, hurls them onto the trail of an enigma that can only be resolved by deciphering Gaudí's architecture and confronting the dangers and obstacles that emerge in their path. Their youth, enthusiasm, tenacity and insight will enable them, finally, to uncover an important and long-kept secret.

A gripping journey into the fabulous creations of Gaudí, a universal genius, through a cosmopolitan and leading-edge Barcelona. An adventure peppered with humour, young love and camaraderie that fosters the value of conserving art and nature, our most endangered heritage.

Ramon lives alone, works in the countryside and has a quiet life. One day, when returning from work, he finds a sheep in front of the house. It's not his, and he does not want it, but this animal has something special. So he decides to put it on the tractor and drive as many kilometres as necessary to find its owner.

Along the way he meets his neighbours, people who enter his life forever and guide him, little by little, to a destination that was not planned.
