Amadeo is a good person. He lives in a small village in Valencia, and since his wife died, he devotes himself to taking care of his father-in-law, Agustin, who is disabled. As a result, he doesn't participate much in social life in the village. One day Lolín, the fishmonger's daughter, has a premonition while decapitating an eel: Amadeo has only seven days to live. This fact will set in motion a series of events that will change his life completely.
