Set in a future society where humans are subjected to therapies with the goal of suppressing all their emotions for greater productivity. Ivan, actor Carlos Noriega, is a psychiatrist for the company NovaTerra whose purpose is to integrate all those people who decide to enter the company despite not knowing the sacrifice they're making. However, one of his patients, Eva, actress Núria Codina, will rebel against the system and will awaken feelings in Ivan for the first time, making him question the corporation and society itself. Ivan will enter a dangerous game in which he must decide whether to continue under government orders or be carried away by his emotions.
