Set in Barcelona, this web series is a mockumentary that tells the stories of people of different nationalities, disease carriers, living in Barcelona. The objective of the project is to investigate the topics existing around the female (and male) figure in experiential contexts, which are common though rarely treated by fiction, as well as topics that remain taboo in contemporary society. The adventures of the protagonists – with their experiences and reflections – that tell of a 'meeting' that never happens, give us a clear vision of their desires and actual daily struggles, showing how you can live in a harmonious way and provoking deep reflection on today's feminine condition.
