David Broncano presents a humorous programme which analyses from his point of view what's happening in this 'Crazy World'. There are no boundaries geographically or thematically that can stop Broncano when it comes to commenting on all kinds of issues that are completely necessary on TV today: cyber-bullying, gentrification, euthanasia, post-truth politics, drugs or sheiks. He's not alone as he's accompanied by a wide range of contributors and comedians such as Quequé, Ricardo Castella, Jorge Ponce, Paco Calavera, Ignatius Farray and Dani Rovira.

The programme, presented by Toni Soler, deals with the main news items of the day paying special attention to political news while keeping an eye on traditional and social media. All without losing any of the satirical bite associated with past Minoria Absoluta productions.

Soler is joined on set by Òscar Andreu and Jair Domínguez, two of the boldest voices in Catalan humour. Also appearing is Elisenda Carod, our roving reporter on the scene.

Cast

Produced by EL Terrat

Sales Agent Contact producer

The first TV programme based entirely on parodies of other programmes and series. A format similar to that of zapping programmes with one totally innovative difference: the clips shown are not real, but recreations in sketch format. A regular team of actors parody programmes from any channel, both current and legendary: game shows, news, series, ads, sports programmes, magazine shows... The sets for each sketch imitate those of the programmes parodied. The programme also features cameos from presenters and actors.
